

This article is in response to the hundreds of star-struck readers who lap up the tiniest dribble of information about the glamorous, jet-set lives of those who edit magazines about children's books. Below we show you, in literally graphic detail, what it's actually like being the editors of one of the glossiest and most prestigious of all the periodicals devoted to the lighter side of collecting girls' school stories. We've called it:

The Agony

THE EVENING

← The sleepless nights...

&

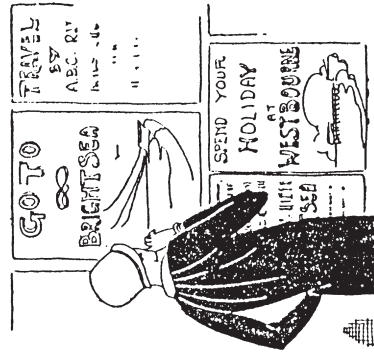

← The delightful visitors...

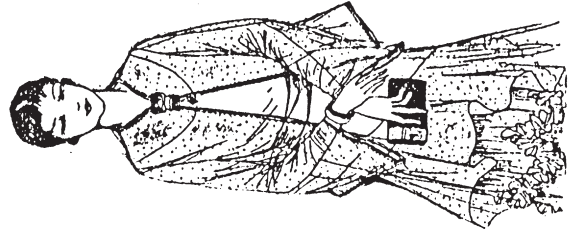

↑ The computer crashes...

← Sue loses Antonia Forest's address...

← The all expenses paid research trips...

← The Royal Garden Party
